President's Pen

President Tim thought he had better put some time into his paid employment again this week. He is forgoing his usual editorial again this week but will be back in print next week.

At our last meeting 16 March

Brian Furrer stood in for Pres. Tim who was away (as was Pres. Elect Graham). The meeting opened promptly with a statement "I aim to get the business part of the meeting over with quickly". Brian noted visiting Rtn Graeme Yates from Drummoyne RC, our guest speaker Bruce Gow, he noted that Héloïse is away on AusTour and that Howard has returned from his travels.

Graham Cuthbertson gave a brief summary of the weekend's Conference D9680 in

Meetings

Monday 6.30pm for 7.00pm – Springfield House – 245 New Line Road, Dural http://www.wphcrotary.org

Rotary Club of West Pennant Hills and Cherrybrook Inc. PO Box 103W West Pennant Hills 2125 Australia

APOLOGIES: If you are unable to attend or are bringing a guest (even if they are your partner) you must book them in.Phone 9439 1422 before 11am on the day of the meeting.

Newcastle: "we did it again! The most creative prize". The 25 attendees were dressed in black as zippers holding a hand saying "HI".

(Ed: you are probably thinking: "what the!"... well the theme was "fly high", so it makes sense ©). Khoa Do was a brilliant opening speaker talking of his experience working with several homeless people giving them an opportunity to make a short movie... except they wanted to make a full length one, and did, and "The Finished People" was a hit (they are now movie stars). Khoa later directed Footy Legends and was Young Australian of the Year 2005. The conference was packed with good speakers, Rotary information and entertainment. The dinners on Friday and Saturday were very well done.

Graham is the organiser for the 2010 conference in Port Macquarie, so start thinking about attending this one. David Turnbull complimented Graham on the accommodation he organised - well done.

Brian discussed the scatter meeting night down for next week. After clarifying that it is a week where, instead of our regular meeting, members choose to do make up meetings with other clubs in our district (a list to be circulated to ensure a good spread of members to different clubs), it was agreed it should be deferred, since we have had several meetings away and we are not adequately prepared. So note that Monday 23March is now a regular meeting at Springfield (and Keith has a speaker he will invite).

Dick Bushell spoke of a fundraising event sponsored by Inner Wheel: Harmony Spectacular Concert to raise funds for the McGrath Foundation, hosted by Rob Palmer from the T.V. Show "Better Homes and Gardens".

Castle Hill RSL on Sunday 5 April 2pm (for 2:30pm). A list was circulated for interest.

Allan Paynter advised we will have an Exchange Student in 2009/2010. Her name is Fabienne Meyer from Switzerland. Please consider being a host parent.

Clive advised that planning is well under way for this years Art Competition. Rosemary and Colomba have compiled the packs which will be issued to the eleven schools which have expressed interest. Information will also be sent to the sponsors.

Graham Coles advised Monday 6th April is a Wine and Cheese Night. There will be wine samples and platters of food. Judy and Timu will provide the music, and we may even be able to get Frank to sing for us! It will be a fun night.

Hany Gerges then provided a very interesting job talk. He started with a picture of the Great Pyramid of Giza, it because houses his ancient decendents, but because Hany was born in Egypt, in a small town on the Suez Canal. He was a student of Sydney University and has worked his dental practise, The Dental Touch, since 2000. There are two identical operatives, fully equipped with the latest digital technology, including digital xrays, intra oral cameras etc. Hany's practise (Ed: why do they call it a practise?) focuses on prevention and restoration, with an aim to preserve the dental structure. "The teeth are important, as they allow us to eat to be healthy". He provided some visual examples of teeth whitening (laser technology), cosmetic dentistry (porcelain crowns and veneers), and dental implants (the length of the mounting screw was a bit scary). The audience just had to ask "how much?" to which Hany replied, "its not that easy" (he should be in politics!). Hany also does orthodontics, and focuses on no extractions. Again and again the "what does it cost" question was asked... you would think our fellow Rotarians fear the invoice more than the procedure! (Hany offered a discount for his mates, to ease that pain!). He even treats sleep apnoea and snoring problems (in some cases uses a MAD thing... now that's scary). Then Howard proceeded to tell of his experience with a bad toothache one new year...... (Ed: I'm not sure if he got to the end of that yarn).

Then Ross Ballinger introduced Bruce Gow, a "Search Engine Guy" and a "Google Adwords qualified individual".

His topic was "Making Business Grow on Google". Bruce started by explaining he owned a pest control company (Ed: that would make him good at debugging code! sic.), but he sold that. He had actually built up that business very successfully by developing web pages, and experimenting with search criteria to optimise successful hits (and sold it for a very good price). With that experience it was natural he would try his hand as a web page developer with focus on the Google certification. "What is Adwords?".... it's the service that provides the context specific adds on the RHS of a Google search, and can cost anywhere from $.09 to $10.00 per click. It is important to get it right, to make the hits count. Then he proceeded to discuss different aspects of SEO

(Search Engine Optimisation) and suggested the link

https://adwords.google.com/select/Keyword ToolExternal where you can see how many hits various keywords get, and the cost per click. This allows you to see how effective a keyword being considered would have been. He proceeded to explain "crawler based listings", link strategies, explained the term spider, title tags, landing pages etc etc.... Many questions were posed showing a high level of interest. Bruce did compliment our club web site, saying we had done everything right (well done Dick). In summary, a very relevant topic for those in business, but for some, a bit technical.

Rob Hamer won the ticket draw, and Clive the heads and tails.

The fines session went very well. Everyone who went to Conference (the raging zippers) as well as those who didn't (Pru did really well with that one), all those who were more concerned by costs during Hany's presentation, and apparently, someone went to sleep at the BowelScan table (maybe he finished his book?) – we all had a chance to contribute.

Brian declared that Tuesday nights Board meeting would be deferred, and closed the meeting at 8:50pm.

Bob Davison, night reporter.

Letter from Caitlyn

Hej to all my favourite Rotarians back home!

The end of my first full month has officially come, and it's been pretty eventful so far!

Well I had my first day at school on Feb 2nd which was scary for about the first 30 seconds. Then I walked in and met my class and now I love it! Everyone is very nice and willing to speak English in order to teach me Danish (if that makes sense), and they have so far invited me to every party, coffee, lunch, dinner and everything else that has been held since I started! The classes I'm taking are English (which I'm shockingly good at), Danish (which is very good for giving me headaches), Maths (which you'd think would be easy seeing as numbers are the same in every language - but you'd be wrong), History (which is good at putting me to sleep), Sport (which is great for embarrassing me), French (just to throw another language into the mix), Chemistry (which i'm not allowed to do until I can speak the language in case I mix the wrong thing and blow the school up) and Biology (just for fun).

Each year, every class in the second grade (which I am in) at my school takes a trip to somewhere around Europe. My guidance counsillor (who is in charge of all of the exchange students at Sct Knuds) told me that chances are I was too late to attend the trip with my class, and that she would speak to the travel agent to see what they could do. So he worked his magic and guess who's going to Rome next weekend? I'm very excited as I have a sneaking suspicion that the sun might actually be a presence in Rome! The average temperature in Denmark at the moment is still hovering on a delightful 3 degrees celcius.

The biggest relief I've had since I last wrote is that I can officially say that I am no longer living out of a suitcase! I spent my first two weeks living with my counsillor, my third week on camp and my fourth week with my second family (as my first one was on holidays), so I never actually got to unpack. It is a relief to be able to say that I am now putting a wardrobe and chest of drawers to good use!

On the 8th February I left for the Rotary Introduction Camp that was held in Randers. There were 45 exchange students there from all over Denmark staying at Nørgaards Højskole, a boarding school that doubled as a camp site. We spent a week taking intensive Danish courses (which naturally included a two hour seminar on swear words) and nightly activities such as a creative workshop, theatre sports and mega-guizzes. We visited Viborg to see the old cathedral and city there, and took a trip to Arhus to visit the Aros art museum. There there was a sculpture called 'The Boy' that was created by an Australian artist. On the last night of camp there was a variety show segment, in which myself and one of the other Australian exchange students wrote and hosted the First Annual Intro Camp Awards, where we gave out spoof prizes to fellow exchange students. It was very fun and the video can be found on YouTube.

Highlights from camp were the Brazillions stripping down to their underwear when it snowed and making snow angels as well as having snowball fights and playing hide and seek. They were very excited because it was the first time most of them had ever seen snow before. Other highlights were the theatre sport competitions and the class against class danish tournaments, which were always very heated and competitive. It was a really fun week and it was so sad to leave at the end of it because everyone became such good friends! But this coming weekend is the Rock In Randers music camp so all of the students will get to see each other again! The same Australian student that I hosted the awards with and I are putting on another show for it - we just have to figure out what!

Since moving in with my new family I have already met both sets of grandparents as well as miscellanious cousins, neighbours and friends. I've been to two school parties, 6 birthday parties, 3 just-for-the-hell-of-it parties and 2 family get togethers - the Danes definitely doesn't shy away from celebrations! I've been attending language school twice a week, 4 hours at a time for the last three weeks and i'm slowly improving. I can now tell you who I am and where I come from, have a basic conversation, call for help, say "thanks for dinner" and swear better in Danish than I can in English.

At my school there are 7 other excchange students, and at the language college there are two classes of 20 of us. All of the students see each other at least every second day if not every other so it's great for all of us to have such a huge support network!

Minor complications I've had so far have been a rather heavy disagreement with my bike and a heated argument with an ATM. My first day of school I was home alone in the morning so had to leave enough time to ride my bike to school as noone could drive me. My counsillor neglected to tell me that the bicycles in Denmark are evil. The wheels of my brand new bike were flat as well as the seat being approximately 2 metres off the ground, so the journey was an interesting one to say the least. I now walk to school and my bike has a cosy residence in the basement of my counsillor's apartment building. ATMs in Denmark don't seem to like Australian bank cards, as one of them ate mine the first time I tried to use it. It has been quite inconvenient having to budget my 750kr Rotary allowance (roughly $180aus) to last 3 weeks whilst I was opening a new bank account, but I managed!

Upcoming events are another classmates birthday party on thursday night and then the Rotary camp this weekend, and Rome next weekend. If you thought my first two reports were long just wait until the next one!

Soak up some sun for me!

Vi ses,

Caitlyn

The Financial Crisis

Heidi is the proprietor of a bar in Berlin . In order to increase sales, she decides to allow her loyal customers - most of whom are unemployed alcoholics - to drink now but pay later. She keeps track of the drinks consumed on a ledger (thereby granting the customers loans).

Word gets around and as a result increasing numbers of customers flood into Heidi's bar.

Taking advantage of her customers' freedom from immediate payment constraints, Heidi increases her prices for wine and beer, the most-consumed beverages. Her sales volume increases massively.

A young and dynamic customer service consultant at the local bank recognizes these customer debts as valuable future assets and increases Heidi's borrowing limit.

He sees no reason for undue concern since he has the debts of the alcoholics as collateral.

At the bank's corporate headquarters, expert bankers transform these customer assets into DRINKBONDS, ALKBONDS and PUKEBONDS. These securities are then traded on markets worldwide. No one really understands what these abbreviations mean and how the securities are guaranteed. Nevertheless, as their prices continuously climb, the securities become top-selling items.

One day, although the prices are still climbing, a risk manager of the bank, (subsequently of course fired due his negativity), decides that slowly the time has come to demand payment of the debts incurred by the drinkers at Heidi's bar.

However they cannot pay back the debts.

Heidi cannot fulfil her loan obligations and claims bankruptcy.

DRINKBOND and ALKBOND drop in price by 95 %. PUKEBOND performs better, stabilizing in price after dropping by 80 %.

The suppliers of Heidi's bar, having granted her generous payment due dates and having invested in the securities are faced with a new situation. Her wine supplier claims bankruptcy, her beer supplier is taken over by a competitor.

The bank is saved by the Government following dramatic round-the-clock consultations by leaders from the governing political parties.

The funds required for this purpose are obtained by a tax levied on the non-drinkers.

Finally an explanation I understand.. Ed

Thoughts for the week

I have kleptomania, but when it gets bad, I take something for it.

My short-term memory is not as sharp as it used to be.

Also, my short-term memory's not as sharp as it used to be.

A bartender is just a pharmacist with a limited inventory

The statement below is true. The statement above is false.
